PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

The overall literacy rate for women increased from 0.2% in 1882 to 6% in 1947. Although in the Vedic period women had access to education in India, they had gradually lost this right. However, in the British period there was revival of interest in women's education in India. During this period, various socio religious movements led by eminent persons like Raja Ram Mohan Roy, Iswar Chandra Vidyasagar emphasized on women's education in India.

As a result women's literacy rate has grown over the three decades and the growth of female literacy has in fact been higher than that of male literacy rate. While in 1971 only 22% of Indian women were literate, by the end of 2001 54.16% female were literate. The growth of female literacy rate is 14.87% as compared to 11.72 % of that of male literacy rate.

Here we gratefully acknowledge Malala Yousafzai, Pakistani female education activist who got the Nobel Peace Prize in 2014 at the age of 17. On 9 October 2012, while on a bus in Swat District after taking an exam, Yousafzai and two other girls were shot by a Taliban gunman in an assassination attempt. After her recovery, Yousafzai became a prominent activist for the right to education, especially for women education.

In the 19th century Kerala, Saint Kuriakose Elias Chavara played a vital role for the women education. Chavara took special initiative for the education of the Dalits. He insisted that the schools should admit dalit children and there should not be any discrimination against them. By starting a Sanskrit school in 1864, attached to the monastery at Mannanam, gave the common people, irrespective of caste, colour and gender an opportunity to learn sanskrit. In 1867, teaching in the school was commenced with the nuns in the convent as the teachers.

Education is a fundamental right for every citizen of the country. All girls and women, irrespective of caste, social strata, marital status or age, are entitled to an education. Education is a basic human right, not a privilege based on status. Women can feel confident and empowered only if they are educated.

“When women are educated, their countries become stronger and more prosperous.”

Malala ----An Educational Activist

Malala Yousafzai, (born July 12, 1997, Mingora, Swat valley, Pakistan), Pakistani activist who, while a teenager, spoke out publicly against the prohibition on the education of girls that was imposed by the Tehrik-e-Taliban Pakistan (TTP; sometimes called Pakistani Taliban). She gained global attention when she survived an assassination attempt at age 15. In 2014 Yousafzai and Kailash Satyarthi were jointly awarded the Nobel Prize for Peace in recognition of their efforts on behalf of children's rights.

Malala was born

1. in the Swat District of Pakistan. This region fell under the rule of the Taliban, which is a fundamentalist terrorist group that imposes highly restrictive rules on women and girls. The Taliban banned girls from attending school or receiving an education of any kind.
2. Her father was a teacher and ran a chain of schools throughout the local region. He continuously encouraged all of his children to learn despite the societal restrictions. Malala credits her father for inspiring her to pursue further education and humanitarian work.
3. She was nominated for the 'International Childrens Peace Prize' in 2011 due to her activism and was awarded Pakistan's National Youth Peace Prize that same year. The Prime Minister of Pakistan later renamed the award the National Malala Peace Prize in her honor.
4. The Taliban shot Malala in the head when she was 15 years old. Her newfound popularity and voice against the Taliban made Malala a high-profile target and in 2012 she was the victim of a nearly fatal assassination attempt. She was on the way home from school when a masked gunman asked for her by name and openly fired on her and her friends.
5. She created the Malala Fund, a charity devoted to bringing equal education opportunities to girls around the world. Malala went to the United Kingdom for medical treatment directly after the shooter's attack where she and her family settled permanently. Afterward, she established the Malala Fund with her father. Within its first year of operation, the Malala Fund raised over $7 million and opened up multiple schools in Malala's native Pakistan.

6. She celebrated her sixteenth birthday by giving a speech to the United Nations.
7. July 12 has been officially designated Malala Day. After her critically acclaimed speech on her birthday at the United Nations, Secretary-General, Ban Ki-moon, urged all young people to speak out and let the world hear their voices. In an act of support, he declared Malala's birthday Malala Day in honor of her courage and influential activism.
8. She was a co-recipient of the 2014 Nobel Peace Prize. After sharing her story, Malala catapulted to international fame and she received an outpouring of support from around the world as her story spread. In honor of her efforts, she became the youngest ever Nobel laureate at the age of 17.
9. Malala received the United Nation's highest honor. In 2017 she received the title of U.N. Messenger of Peace to promote girl's education, a two-year appointment given to activists whose work has made an impact.
10. Oxford University accepted Malala in 2017 where she began studying Philosophy, Politics and Economics. While pursuing her own studies, she currently still works with leaders and organizations around the globe on behalf of the Malala Fund and the United Nations, fighting for equal education for all.
